TEST OF STRENGTH.

t Will Be Developed on the Question of a Ratio.
Ratio.
CHICAGO, Aug. 18—(By the Asso-ington special says: "It becomes ap-parent, as the debate in the House progresses, that the test of strength between the silver and anti-silver forces will be shown on the substitute measure for free coinage at the ratio for it would be an admission that the future use of silver as money must depend on its intrinsic value instead of the stamp of the government, and would be subject to change just as the price of buillon fluctuates. "The silver leaders agree with Representative Bryan that bimetallism does not depend on any fixed ratio, but may exist as well at the ratio of 16 to 1 as a ratio of 30 to 1. The free silver leaders are counseling their followers to mass their strength on the substitute of 16 to 1, and many of them will decline to vote at higher ratio on the ground that it would be a degradation of the white metal as a monetary standard. Silver men now admit that the repeal vote will pass the House by a large majority because of the peculia variety of free coinage views; bu

they hope that the Senate will return the bill to the House with certain con-cessions to silver coinage."

sational developments in the room of the Senate Finance Committee today. Both sides remained firm, the unyleiding minority, or silver men, contenting themselves with the statement that they would carry to the Senate the fight that was hopeless in the committee. There had been some quiet talk among the anti-silver men of the committee as to the chances for a vote and final action on the Voorhees bill,

There seems to be a feeling that the bill of Senator Vest, establishing free coinage at a ratio of 20 to 1, may possibly be successful. In that event, even, they look for the final triumph of the administration measure. The two bills would then go to conference, and in that stage of the proceedings, the Senate could, without sacrificing its dignity, which it so zealously guards, recede from its position and adopt the triumph of the triumph of the stage of the proceedings, the Senate could, without sacrificing its dignity, which it so zealously guards, recede from its position and adopt the triumph of the triumph of the stage of the proceedings, the Senate to the senate to the markets and in the markets and in the markets and in the markets and in the payment of debts. It is further declared that the efscription of the government should be steadily directed to the establishment of such a safe system of bimetallism as will maintain, at all times, the equal power of every dollar coined or issued by the United States in the markets and in the payment of debts. the Senate could, without sacrificing its dignity, which it so zealously guards, recede from its position and adopt the bill of the House.

his speech was the sensation of the day. Mr. Sibley is the only member of the Keystone State who is opposed to placing the United States upon a single gold standard. He is a firm advocate of bimetallism.

On the other side of the question there appeared another new champion, Representative Everett of Massachusetts, who succeeds Mr. Lodge. Representative Haines of New York and Representative English of New Jersey, both Democrats, spoke in favor of repoth Democrats, spoke in favor of re-pealing the silver purchasing clause, and Jerry Simpson spoke against it. The bill for national banks' circulation was then taken up. Senator Allen of Nebraska favored the adoption of the amendment offered by him on last Wednesday to suspend the interest on the bonds on which the increased circulation was based. In increased, circulation was based, in increased, circulation was based. In creased circulation was based. In his judgment, the bill would commit the country to the policy of the continuance of the national banking system, and he believed the time would come when safety required the overthrow of that system, and the wiping out of its existence as speedily as possible.

In 1872. John Daggett, now Superintendent of the Mint in San Francisco, took a chest containing a fifteen-hundred-dollar silver service to Vandqrslice's store for safe-keeping. Thirteen years went by before Daggett called for it, and then it could not be found, and the jeweler supposed that some one had called for the chest in Daggett's name and had made away with it.

Daggett's name and had made away with it.

Daggett commenced suit against Vanderslice for the recovery of his silver service or its value. The case was tried in the Superior Court, and a decision was rendered in Vanderslice's favor. Daggett appealed, and the Supreme Court ordered a new trial. Another trial was 'accordingly had in the Superior Court, and again the the Superior Court, and again the decision was in Vanderslice's favor. Daggett then dropped the matter, and nothing more has been heard of it since.

Today, however, one of the members of the firm of Vanderslice & Co. dusted off an old, unmarked cheet, which the traditions of the establishment said belonged to a family in Oakland. It had been there twenty years to his knowledge, and he determined to open it. He did so, and found that the chest contained Daggett's long-lost silver, the different pleces being wrapped just as Mrs. Daggett had packed them twenty years ago. Mr. Daggett had packed them twenty years ago. Mr. Daggett was sent for and his property returned to him with mutual congratulations.

Chamberlain, the leader of the Unionists, gave notice that he would move as an amendment to Gladstone's resolution that the House declare that the government's proposal is calculated to degrade the House into a voting machine, depriving the British majority of their constitutional rights and ought, therefore, be withdrawn. Thomas G. Bowles (Conservative) asked the government whether the award of the Bering Sea Tribunal of Arbitration imposed upon Great Britain obligations to forbid pelagic sealing by British subjects at any time whatever, within sixty miles around Pribyloff Islands. He also desired to be informed whether it put other restraints upon British sealers, while it imposed no obligation on the United States to restrict sealing on land at any time Further, Bowles said he desired to be informed whether the effect of the award would not be to give an effectual monopoly of the sealing industry to Americans.

The Foreign Secretary, in replying, said it was not considered that the effect of the award would be to give Americans a monopoly of the Industry. The award imposed certain obligations upon the United States as well as upon Great Britain, and he could not admit that these obligations would act to the prejudice of British interests, as Bowles had suggested by his questioning. # NOT UNLAWFUL.

A Dispute Over Pasture Land Settled.

Durralde Had the Law on His Side.

Albert Acevedo Must Serve His Sentence Out.

The Jury in the Yant Burglary Case Finds a Verdict of Guilty-Judge Pierce Returns to San Diego-Court Notes.

The Supreme Court has affirmed the judgment and order appealed from in the case of Jules Saulqua, appellant, vs. Buente Durralde, respondent. The actiqu was for forcible detainer of the tract of land known as the Sturgiss ranch. A judgment of non-suit was entered against the plaintiff, and from this ladgment and an order, denying a against the plaintiff, and from this judgment and an order denying a motion for a new trial, the appeal was taken.

The decisive opinion, which was received by Deputy Clerk Sesnon yesterday, recites that the complaint as framed alleges that on the day of the defendant's entry, or for five days prior thereto, the plaintiff was in the peaceable and actual possession of the whole ranch mentioned, and that on August 25, 1891, during his temporary absence, defendant unlawfully entered upon it and took possession, and further, that a demand for vacation had been made and met with a refusal.

The answer denied these allega-refusal. The answer denied these allegations, and pleaded the defendant's right to enter and pasture upon stubble under a license from the owner of the ranch.

One T. W. Dixon, occulpied and farmed the ranch in question. Previously he had entered into an agreement with the plaintiff whereby it was provided that for the consideration of $320 he was to farm the whole place with the right to one well for his exclusive use.

Plaintiff testified that he went upon a part of the land with a flock of sheep, and kept them there several days, and that later he went back without the sheep and put up some watering troughs. That still later he again returned and found that someone had removed the troughs, and also found the defendant on the land with his sheep, and made a demand that he surrender possession. The part of the land upon which the plaintiff had had his sheep was not in grain, and embraced about twenty acres, upon which, the plaintiff claimed Mr. Dixon had given him permission to put his sheep. The defendant took his sheep upon the same part of the land, the day preceding plaintiff's demand.

The opinion of the Supreme Court was that the plaintiff did not show proper possession, and that the nonsult was properly granted. The was that the plaintiff did not show proper possession, and that the nonsult was properly granted. The occupancy of the twenty acres of land for a few days, and the placing of watering troughs upon it was not such occupancy as the statiste contemplated for so harsh a remedy as unlawful detainer. As the plaintiff did not show a right to recover in the action, he was not injured by exclusion of evidence on the point of damages, as claimed.

An examination of the whole record disclosing no prejudicial error, the judgment and order appealed from were affirmed.

WILL SERVE TIME. Some months ago the house of a Chinese doctor on Marchessault street was plundered, the burglars carrying on a considerable amount of money and valuables, which were stored in a chest. Albert Acevedo and two of the Abbott boys were arrested shortly afterward, and Acevedo was convicted of the theft and sentenced to five years imprisonment. The case was taken to the Supreme Court on appeal, and yesterday an opinion was received, in plundered, the burglars carrying off a terday an opinion was received, in which the judgment and order denying the motion for a new trial were affirmed.

Judge Pierce yesterday ordered that the defendant in the Kofoed-Gordon case be granted ten days' time in which to prepare, serve and file a statement on motion for a new trial. Mrs. M. D. Vezina was awarded her decree of divorce by default, yesterday in Department Six, the suit being brought against J. D. Vezina. An undertaking on release of attachment, in the case of Jesse W. Woodruff vs. R. N. C. Wilson, was signed yesterday by Judge Pierce.

John Ponet, a native of Belgium, appeared in Department Six yesterday as a candidate for admission to citizenship, and, upon satisfying the court that he possessed the necessary qualifications, took the usual oath and went away rejoicing.

In the Probate Court, Judge Pierce presiding, the following orders were entered: Estate of M. G. Davenport, deceased, petition to set apart homestead granted: estate of J. F. C. Johnson, deceased, petition to sell personal property granted. Judge Pierce, who has occupied the bench in Department Six during the past week, returned to San Diego last evening. Judge McKinley will resume work today in his own court.

In the Township Court a complaint has been filed by J. P. Jensen, charging Clyde Ewing with assault with a deadly weapon. A warrant was issued for Ewing's arrest, but the, maa could not be found yesterday, and it is supposed that he has left town to avoid being captured.

The jury in the case of People vs. W. T. Yart returned a verdict of guilty of burglary against the defendant yesterday morning, when the court ordered that time for passing sentence be set for the 21st.

Business was very dull around the Federal Courts yesterday. There was only one arraignment, that of Charles F. Nickel, before United States Commissioner Van Dyke, for opening the letters and obstructing the correspondence of another. His examination was set for August 23, and bail was fixed at $500. The facts of the case were published in The Times of recent date.

MADAGASCAR ORCHIDS.

They are Fine Specimens, but Difficult and Dangerous to Get.
(London News:) The pursuit of orchids in Madagascar appears from a letter of that indefatigable collector, M. Hamelin, to be a task of no little danger and disculty. It was only after a year spent by the favor of Moyambasa—a king of a powerful tribe flercely hostile to foreign encroachments—in exploring a territory almost inaccessible to Europeans, that he discovered the gorgeous orchid now known as "Eulophiella Elizabetha." It is a parasite growing only in a very limited region on trees of slow growth. To secure the plants which flourish on the tops of the tallest of these trees he was obliged to have the trees cut down and carefully gather all the flants himself. Although this French botanist had well-armed men with him, plants nimself. Although this French botanist had well-armed men with him, on whom he could rely, he was compelled to constantly guard against surprises by the warriors of neighboring tribes.

Besides this the party were compelled to keep a watchful eye upon the wild animals haunting these primeval forests. The most terrible of all is the Madagascar "protocrytoferox," whose favorite haunts are among the masses of foliage where the eulophielia grows. This small, but exceedingly dangerous, animal is described as crouching in the forks of trees, hidden among the rich tropical foliage and climbing plants, and there watching for its prey. It is exceedingly agile, and the moment its victim approaches it slides silently down and in one bound is on the top of it—a picture of horrible ferocity.

ONE MAN HELD.

Examination of the Alleged Bandits of the Beach.

But Little Evidence Against the Alleged Santa Monica Highwaymen-J. M. Carter Discharged by the Justice.

Justice Willis of Santa Monica was Justice Willis of Santa Monica was occupied the greater part of yesterday with the examination of J. M. Carter and his brother, John Carter, on a charge of robbing a Santa Fe brakeman of a gold watch, on the night of August 7.

The little courtroom was crowded to suffocation with a motley throng, who suffocation with a motley throng, who had come to catch a glimpse of the alleged bandits of the beach, and to hear what evidence might be offered against them. From the general statements made previous to the hearing it was supposed that the prosecution was loaded with a lot of evidence that would be convincing of the defendants' guilt. This, however, was not the case. Young Carter, the man who would be convincing of the defendants' guilt. This, however, was not the case. Young Carter, the man who was robbed, stated plainly that he could not identify the defendants as his assailants. Mrs. Clayton, who was out with him on the evening of the robbery, and who was attacked by one of the highwaymen, was quite positive that John Carter, the youngest of the pair, was the one who had hold of her. On cross-examination, though, she did not seem to be sure of thise. As to thebrother, J. M. Carter, she was simply unable to identify him.

There was some evidence offered, also, to show that he defendants were on Ocean avenue about the time of the robbery, though it lacked a positiveness that rendered the testimony almost worthless. True, the gold watch was found, and it was identified as the property of the young man who was robbed; but there seemed to be no connection whatever between the finding of this property and the defendants, who were charged with stealing it.

Johnny Platt, who perhaps knows more about the case than any one not directly implicated, was not placed upon the stand at all. Why this was, no one but the prosecution knows.

The defense offered no testimony at all. After an argument by Le Compte Davis on behalf of the people, and by Mr. Peck for the defendants, the justice ordered that John Carter be held to answer to the Superior Court, with bonds fixed at $1000. J. M. Carter was dismissed.

bonds fixed at $1000. J. M. Carter was dismissed.

There is another charge against these boys of robbing old man Robinson of the Soldiers' Home, and the examination will take place next Wednesday. In the meantime J. M. Carter, while he is free on the first charge, will be kept in jail until he can be examined on the latter complaint.

John Carter, who was yesterday held, is a young fellow, not more than 18 years of age; but, while he is young in years, the officers say that he has done time before this.

A New Scale Bug. (Pacific Rural Press:) State Horticultural Quarantine Officer Alexander Craw discovered a new species of scale shrubs which came from India upon the steamer Peking last Saturday. The scale has never been in California be-fore, but is the kind that attacks all fore, but is the kind that attacks all-citrus fruit trees. It is a wax scale called cerioplastis, smaller and darker colored than the wax scales received from Florida and Japan. As the trees are of great value to the State they will be thoroughly disinfected instead of being destroyed. They were sent to Dr. Rabe, who has been traveling exten-sively in India, China and Japan. Dr. Rabe is now in Honolulu on his way here. When he arrives the plants will Rabe is now in Honolulu on his way here. When he arrives the plants will be presented to him by the State University. Shipments of plants from the Orient are very rare now that the weather has become warm. These plants came in a specially prepared case, which is just like a small greenhouse. They arrived in excellent condition. Mr. Craw says that after disinfection there will be no danger from the fection there will be no danger from the scale, and he considers the plants of considerable economic value, and is therefore anxious that they should be preserved. (California Fruit Grower:) Dipping the fruit in a strong alkaline solution to crack the skin, and thus facilitate drying and curing, has been the general practice of California prune-growers. W. H. Aiken, the well-known Santa Cruz mountain prune-grower, has adopted a device which may prove a great improvement over the customary ly treatment. This device consists in an ingenious arrangement of numerous needle points, over which the fresh K. A. Danielson vs. George P. Yoakum; suit to declare a deed void. Katie Sherman vs. W. L. Weigh the Milk.

Find out by weighing and testing the milk whether the cow is paying for her food or not. If she is, increase it and find out how much more she will pay for at the same rate. If she is not, try how much more it is necessary to give her before she will pay. It is the excess over the amount needed to sustain life that she pays for, and while there is limit to the amount she can profitably consume, there are few feeders who reach that limit with a properly-mixed ration.

PUBLIC WORKS.

Recommendations Adopted at the Board Meeting Yesterday. The Board of Public Works met yes-terday and prepared the following for

New York Stocks.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—The market for securities was extremely dull again today. The sales of stocks footed up 92,296 shares, and the trading for outside account was probably higher than on any previous day for weeks and months past. Less than half a dozen stocks showed important fluctuations, and in these instances the movements were most erratic. General Electric dropped 13½ to 37½, rose to 30½, broke to 37½, railied to 39½ and closed a 38½. Manhattan showed a net loss of 2 per cent. and Lake Shore and Northwestern about 1 per cent, while Distillers gained 1 and presentation to the City Council:
In the matter of the protest against In the matter of the protest against the improvement of Bridge street, it having been represented to this board that parties have signed said protest who are not owners of property and others for more than they own, we recommend that all protests, with the original petition, be referred to the City Engineer for further investigation and report to the Council at next Monday's session.

In the matter of the motion to have Figueroa street swept three times per week we recommend that the same be granted, and also that Temple street be swept twice a week; that Broadway between First and Third streets be between First and Third streets be swept every night; that Spring street as far south as Seventh street be swept every night, instead of sprinkling as petitioned for by W. R. Alexander and petitioned for by W. R. Alexander and others.

In the matter of the recommendation of the City Engineer that Lyon street be straightened before the same is graded, as contemplated by ordinance No. 1781, we recommend that the present proceedings be abandoned and that the City Engineer make a survey and map of the property, to be taken for the said straightening, and furnish the same to the City Attorney to draft the necessary ordinance, and that the district of assessment be confined to the said Lyon street.

said Lyon street.

In the matter of the petition from Wright & Lynch, asking to have the grade established on Ingraham street, from Whittier street to Lucas avenue, and also asking that they be allowed to read the same he private contract. grade the same by private contract, we recommend that the City Engineer present an ordinance of intention to establish the grade, and that when once established the City Attorney present an ordinance allowing the work by private contract according to specifica-

National Banking

The latest proposition called out by the financial stringency is that the United States shall guarantee depositors in the national banks under cer-tain conditions. A bill will probably be introduced in the Senate by Hunton of West Virginia, which enacts as fol-

"Section 1. Every national bank existing and doing business at the date of the passage of this act shall, as soon as practicable thereafter, report in writing its true financial condition to the Secretary of the Treasury, and if found by said Secretary to be in a solvent condition, the deposits thereafter made in such bank in good faith in due course of business by persons not officers of the bank, nor stockholders in the corporation doing banking business, shall be, and they are hereby guaranteed by the United States, paid to depositors, or their lawful assigns, or transferees, when drawn by drafter check, but no person shall be allowed to overdraw his account in any manner.

2. To indemnify the United "Sec. 2. To indemnify the United States from loss of the guarantee given and made in the first section of this act an annual tax is hereby levied on all deposits hereafter made in banks described in this act, equal to one-fourth of 1 per cent, of said deposits, and said tax shall be paid to the Secretary of the Treasury on the last day of each month of the year on the deposits of that month."

If the government was as far as this.

If the government goes as far as this, will ask why it should not go a little farther and open banks of its

The Examiner calls attention to the fact that the proposition to permit national banks to issue notes to the face value of bonds deposited may mean much more than appears on its face. Apparently it would allow an increase of not more than $20,000,000 in the amount of the notes in circulation, but in reality it might double or triple the present issues. The Examiner says:

"With the existing limit of 90 per cent, of the par value of bonds it is impossible for the profits on circulation to go beyond a certain figure. The interest on the capital invested cannot go much above 10 per cent, in the most favorable circumstances, and may fall considerably below that point. Hence there is no great inducement for the banks to issue notes, and many do not do it.

"If it were possible to be seen to see the control of t not do it.

If it were possible to buy bonds at r, and to issue their full value in stes, a bank with a capital of $100,-9 could do business of any number millions, and its profits would run o into the hundreds per cent. It uld deposit $100,000 in bonds, issue 00 000 in potes, use the notes to buy up into the hundreds per cent. It could deposit $100,000 in bonds, Issue $190,000 in notes, use the notes to buy another $100,000 in bonds, deposit these as security for another $100,000 in notes, and keep up the operation indefinitely. Unfortunately, the only bonds that can be bought at par are the 2 per cents, of which there are only about $25,000,000 outstanding. The great mass of banking operations must be based on the 4 per cents, which are now selling at 108, and would undoubtedly go up if the proposed legislation should be adopted. With these the possible profits of note issues might reach 25 per cent on the original investment. "The tetal amount of bonds now outstanding is $55,000,000. If all these were to be utilized as a basis for note circulation to their face value, the amount of national bank notes outstanding could be increased from $172,000,000, as it stood at the close of last year, to $55,000,000—a gain of over $400,000,000. Of course, some of the bonds are in private hands, and could not be obtained by the banks except at a high premium."

of be obtained by the banks except t a high premium."

It is, indeed, remarkable that people credit money, should be so alarmed at a threatened increase in the silver currency.

Scientific Surgery.

It is well known that the science of surgery has made a wonderful advance within the past quarter of a century, Operations are now successfully performed that twenty-five years ago would have been looked upon as sure to result fatally.

The latest man of nerve that we have read of, and who has unbounded faith in the possibilities of surgical science, is an armless man who is seriously engaged in the scheme to secure a new pair of arms. There are doubtless convicts who would be willing to sacrifice a limb in the interests of science if there by they could hope to win a pardon and regain their liberty, or a poor man might, for a large sum of mency, consent to part with a limb, if thereby he could look forward to exemption from toil and grinding poverty. A good deal toil and grinding poverty. A good deal of interest has been felt in this case, and if undertaken the world will naturally be profoundly interested in the result of the experiment.

MUST VACATE.

Collector Quinn's Resignation is Demanded.

Corresponding Joy Among the Faithful i This City at the Prospect of Filling a Number of Federal Offices.

The arrival of the San Francisco Chronicle of yesterday containing the information that Internal Revenue Collector Quinn's resignation had been demanded by Secretary Carlisle, and that the name of Quinn's successor that the name of Quinn's successor will be announced as soon as Quinn's answer is received, created quite a stir among the Democrats of this city. Since the departure of Vice-President Stevenson the faithful have heard little to encourage their hopes, and this piece of intelligence, although it would only ultimately affect a limited number of minor positions in his section.

only ultimately affect a limited num-ber of minor positions in this section, was still very welcome reading. Aside from its local effect, the news is evidence that Senator White is on the scene of action, and has his war-paint on. Quinn is supposed to have made himself particularly obnoxious to the Senator, as the Collector, after voluntarily promising, so the story made himself particularly obnoxious to the Senator, as the Collector, after voluntarily promising, so the story goes, not to take any part in the Senatorial fight at Sacramento last winter, yet came to the capital and tried his best to form a combination of Republicans and Populists in favor of Thomas V. Cator. Although at no time during the fight was there any chance for any other than White, yet the backing of Quinn gave the Populist leader confidence, and was one of the main reasons for Cator's staying at Sacramento until long after the election. Cator's association with the disagreeable Bretz episode and the wily leader's constant efforts to show that White's election was obtained by unfair means, are still fresh in the memory of the public. Quinn's close connection with the Populist candidate and the groundless fears created in the Democratic camp by such an alliance were food for comment at the time. However, no further damage than the loes of a few hours' sleep was occasioned, and White was finally elected.

QUINN DECLINES.

The Collector of Internal Revenue Refuses to Resign.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 18.—(By the Associated Press.) Collector of Inter-nal Revenue John C. Quinn, on Associated Press.) Collector of Internal Revenue John C. Quinn, on Wednesday, received a telegram from C. S. Hamlin, Acting Secretary of the Treasury, notifying him that, by the direction of the President, he was requested to tender his resignation as Collector, to take effect upon the appointment and qualification of his successor. In answer to this communication, Collector Quinn yesterday sent the following reply:

"My term of office as Internal Revenue Collector will expire next March, although at that time I will have held the office but three years, one year of the term being held by my deceased predecessor. There is a popular impression that resignation implies a desire on the part of the official to avoid the disclosure of something unpleasant in the administration of his office. Knowing that I have performed the duties of my position as Internal Revenue Collector with the acknowledged approval of my superiors. I must decline to give grounds for ill-natured criticism by resignation, which in the future might put me on explanation." Collector Quinn, who is a Republican, says that President Cleveland promised Senator Stanford that he (Quinn) should not be removed without cause, and that the only charge brought against him is offensive partisanship. Quinn says: "If President Cleveland wants to remove me, he can do so by simply appointing my successor, and he need not have me resign. I shall not resign under any circumstances. I shall have to be bounced."

BROKE THE DAM.

Trouble Over the City's Water Supply.

The Owners of the Providencia Ranch Cut Off the Today.

The water flowing through the Citizens' Water Company ditch and supplying for irrigation purposes fully one-half of the city, was urned off at about 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon. No notice of such action was served upon the city, and so it was 11 o'clock that night before Water Overseer Bilderrain was made aware of this state

The water running into this ditch is taken from just above a dam in the river situated on the Providencia ranch, some distance above and beyond the northern boundary line of the yond the northern boundary line of the Los Fellz ranch.

By a lease with the Citizens' Water Company, entered into some three years ago, that company had the right to run river water through this ditch on the Providencia ranch, paying to Messrs. Pomeroy and Hooker, the woners of the ranch, the sum of 35 per day for the privilege. By a provision of this agreement, either party could terminate the lease by giving the other party sixty days' notice. Such notice was given by the Citizens' Water Company, so that the contract terminated on the 15th inst.

From the statement of Overseer Bilderrain, it was learned that on Thurs-

From the statement of Overseer Bli-derrain, it was learned that on Thurs-day afternoon Mr. Pomeroy, with an-other gentleman, went to the head of the ditch, and by a sort of "bluft" in-timidated the man whose duty it is to watch the dam in the river at that point, and he fied. The water running into the ditch was then turned into the river.

point, and he field. The water running into the ditch was then turned into the river.

Overseer Bilderrain was informed at about 11 o'clock in the evening that the water had been turned off. He immediately sent word to his men stationed at the Macy and Buena Vistastreet dams, both within the city, to have sufficient help on hand at each of those places at 3 o'clock in the morning to prevent any damage being done by the increased volume of water.

When the members of the City Council who were about the City Hall yesterday morning became aware of the serious condition of affairs a meeting was held to consider the matter. The members of the Water Supply and Zanja Committees were in consultation with the City Attorney for some time, and upon the advice of that-official the Water Overseer was instructed to proceed to the head of the Citizens' ditch with a sufficient force of men to turn the water on and keep it turned on. The Water Overseer left soon afterward for the scene of the trouble, and at his residence on Pleasant avenue he last night told a reporter about how he had found matters. He stated that he did not go yesterday so much for the purpose of immediately turning on the water again as that he might look the ground over and become better acquainted with the situation.

The Oakland and Sacramento teams are still intact, but their disintegration, under the peculiar circumstances of the case, is but a matter of time.

Last Thursday's Chronicle devotes a portion of its space to the baseball situation. The article is undoubtedly correct, except in one particular. The statement that President Wieland telegraphed to the Los Angeles club asking about the boys' future movements is incorrect, insofar as the club itself is concerned. Such a telegram may have been sent to Ex-Manager Hammond, but certainly Lytle, McCauley, Borchers and the balance of the team at that time in Los Angeles knew nothing of such a message. As a matter of fact, Lytle and McCauley had sent many telegrams to the officers of the league, and for several days patiently awaited replies. None came to them, and, finally, getting tired of waiting, they left Los Angeles for the East. Otherwise, the Chronicle, in the following article, "speaks by the card." that he did not go yesterday so much for the purpose of immediately turning on the water again as that he might look the ground over and become better acquainted with the situation.

He found two men on goard at the place, and both of them had rifes. One of the men was attired in the garb of a cowboy, and wore a belt well filled with cartridges. The men were not disposed to be quarrelsome, but maintained that they were there to prevent any one from turning the water back into the ditch. One of them went so far as to arrange for an exchange of courtesies in the way of cigars and other luxuries.

The men inquired if any attempt was to be made last night to turn on the water, and appeared to be relieved when Mr. Bilderrain stated that he thought not till today.

The Water Overseer expects to consult with the Mayor and City Attorney this morning, and then proceed with a force of ten men to the place of trouble. None of the men will be permitted to carry any sort of firearms.

Mr. Bilderrain stated further that "The directors of the California Baseball League met yesterday and accomplished the destruction of their organization. It was an adjourned meeting from the day before, and it was expected that some favorable communication would be received from the Los Angeles club in reply to President Wiendand's telegraphic message, which was sent south to determine the attitude of the citrus belt aggregation toward continuing the season. But Los Angeles did not come to the rescue of the league, and what little hope the Northern managers may have entertained toward effecting a reorganization of the league is now dissipated.

"The ten players of the San Fran-will be permitted to carry any sort of firearms.

Mr. Bilderrain stated further that it was his intention to, if possible, avoid any kind of a fight, but he felt, however, that the water must be turned on. He admitted that he thought it not improbable that he might be arrested for trespass, but he intended to go prepared for any such emergency.

He thought it not unlikely that a number of deputy constables from Burbank might be ready to arrest any who should trespass on the Providencia ranch, but said that he intended to take along a sufficient number of deputy sheriffs, whose powers would be superior to those of constables. If the constables attempt to arrest the Water Overseer's men then the deputy sheriffs, it is thought, can make arrests on the other side.

As to the rights involved in the matter, Mr. Bilderrain said that he thought Mr. Pomeroy should have settled them in the courts, without stopping the water at all. The shutting off of this water means a most, serious injury to a quantity of growing fruits and vegetablee. Without this water thousands of dollars worth of such crops would within a short time be ruined.

A. E. Pomeroy was seen by a reporter yesterday. He said that he proposed to defend his rights. The water of the Los Angeles River was the property of the city, but the municipality had no right to trespass on the Providencia ranch. If the city wanted to take water from the river for running in this ditch, it could take it from somewhere on the Los Fellz ranch, where it had the right. He did not intend to cause bloodshed, but he proposed to prevent any one from turning on that water again.

City Attorney McFarland stated to a reporter, in response to the query as to what his opinion that the city could turn on the water again.

A man who gave his name as T. James, and who said he lived at Fourth and Los Angeles streets, was slightly injured while trying to alight from a moving electric car at the corner of Third and Spring streets last evening at about 5:30 o'clock. He fell backward and struck the back of his head, making a small scalp wound and tearing his clothes. He was more mad than hurt, and refused at first to give his name or address. He had evidently been drinking. The electric people, according to the statement of spectators, were in no way to blame.

The man applied for treatment at the police station, where the wound was sewed up by Police Surgeon Bryant. A House Burglarized. Burglars effected an entrance to the residence of F. N. Marion at Vernon Thursday night, and carried off, besides

Mrs. Marion was alone in the house at the time, and the first she knew of the house-breaking she found that everything had been overhauled and a thorough search made of the different rooms. There was a strong smell of chloroform about the premises, which accounted for Mrs. Marion not being awakened. No trace has yet been obtained of the burglars.

TIR. AND TIRS. MESMER. They are Quietly Enjoying Themselves in San Francisco. Louis Mesmer of the United States Hotel, who recently surprised his family and friends by taking unto himself a wife, has been heard from. The old gentleman is in San Francisco, quietly enjoying his honeymoon with his bride, but expects to return to Los-Angeles early next week. Mrs. Mesmer wished to first visit the World's Fair, but Mr. Mesmer-said that this could be postponed, and they would first go home and "face the storm," which he says he knows is coming. On Saturday last Mr. Mesmer left the city, saying that he was going to San Francisco on business, and the first heard of the marriage was a rumor on Wednesday that he had been married in San Diego on Monday to Mrs. Jennie E. Swan, also of this city, and that they had gone to San Francisco on a bridal trip. This report was not at first believed by the family of Mr. Mesmer, but was afterward confirmed by Constable Richardson, a relative of the lady. To say that Mr. Mesmer's family were surprised would be putting it midlly. He is over 69 years of age, and, while he has been paying some attention to the lady, the idea of his marrying never entered their heads. Mr. Mesmer's sons decline to discuss the matter, merely admitting that it is true, and will wait till they can have a personal interview with him before expressing any opinion. So far as known, Mr. Mesmer took no one into his confidence, and consulted no one. The lady first went to San Diego, when he followed, and they were quietly married by a Catholic priest in that city. They then took the steamer for San Francisco, where they have been since. They are Quietly Enjoying Themselves San Francisco. EXCURSION RATE

They are trying to arrange a series of games between the two clubs, part of the games to be played in Sacramento, and the remainder in Oakland and San Francisco. It seems probable that the proposition will be carried through, and it ought to be a paying venture, as the managers would not be under very great expense in the matter of railroad fares.

"Los Angeles was the death of the league. Patronage fell off in the Southern Citrus Belt, and those managers who tried to run the team on a paying basis made a fizzle of it. Finally the situation grew so bad that the Northern clubs refused to go south unless given a guarantee of $100 over expenses, and the failure of Manager Hammond to give a guarantee to Sacramento was the break that caused all the trouble.

CHIMERICAL SCHEME.
Railroad officials in Chicago think a proposition advanced by Maj. J. G. Pangborn for turning the World's Fair grounds after the close of the fair into a grand central passenger depot—the grandest in the world—too impracticable to be worthy of consideration. Maj. Pangborn's idea is that the Manufactures building might be transformed into a central depot proper, while the other buildings could be used for various railroad purposes. Railroad men see too many difficulties in the way to allow of such a scheme being considered. The diversified locations of the roads entering the city are such that no one station could be used by them all. The fair grounds could not be obtained at any price if such a scheme were otherwise practicable. No money could be secured, at present to carry out the proposed enterprise, and altogether it is considered impracticable and impossible.

The Union Pacific today gave notice that on next Sunday it will put into effect a $25 first-class, and an $18 second-class rate from Missouri River points to Butte, Helena, Portland and Spokane. This would make the rate to Chicago a trifle under $80.

In regard to the fees for certificates and deeds for street assessments, these have been collected, but they have not yet been turned into the city treasury. The amount is very small, however, and probably will not exceed 375. The reason this money has not been turned over, it is said, is because it is claimed that there is a question as to what shall be done with it. The law says that the fees shall be collected, and the inference is that they must go into the city treasury, although it does not say so. This is one of the points that the Council will probably investigate, with a view to establishing a precedent.

L. R. Jones, who had the job of furnishing the blank books referred to, stated to a Times reporter yesterday that he took the job as a whole, and sublet it to Glass & Long. He then did the printing on them for that firm. Mr. Jones said that although the profit in that case was rather more than the average, yet there were many jobs which scarcely paid expenses. He thought that it was with printing as with other kinds of business, where, in order to keep even, a man must make a good profit on one transaction in order to make up for the loss in another.

(Pall Mall Gazette:) I do not marry for many reasons. One reason is that I am of a very affectiontionate temperament. I feel quite sure that it is better for me to love all women, as I do now, than to have to profess to love but one woman—my wife.

(So writes an unmarried man in Cassell's.)

Let me think of some more reasons.

Let me think of some more reasons. As a bachelor I get a great many invitation cards and pleasant attentions wherever I go. My married friends don't have anything like as much luck, and their wives make them angry by wondering why it is so.

It is exceedingly nice when I dine out to be paired off with an unmarried girl. My married friends look across the table at me enviously. Any sort of married "frump" is good enough for them.

As I am, I can do exactly as I like; As lam, I can do exactly as I like; go to bed at 9 or at 3 at my own will, and breakfast in bed or up at any hour. Most husbands can by no meaus do as they please, even in so small a matter as this. They are expected to be at home at 10 or 11 o'clock, or face cold coffee, cold eggs, cold toast and cold looks next morning.

Every married man marries for himself—for his pleasure and comfort. Am I to blame if I choose to remain single for the same purpose? There is no gle for the same purpose? There is no absurder cant than the talk about it being a man's duty to the race to take a wife.

ing a man's duty to the race to take a wife.

Of course, too, there is the dreadful possibility of marriage turning out ill. It is next to impossible for a man to say definitely. "I can be happy with such a woman for a wife." I know two sweet young girls who five years from their wedding day were untidy, coarse, negligent women, either openly loving their children to the neglect of their husbands, or openly indifferent to both husband and children.

This sort of thing is frightful to think of. Married men in some cases seem to get used to it, but it wearies and kills the brighter part of them.

I do not write altogether as a novice in matters of the heart. I have been in love over and over again. Somehow, though, I have always put off popping the question until some other fellow has done it on his own account. Of all the girls whom I might have married, only one now, as a married woman, seems to answer the expectations. I had

Besides, I have a gray hair or two, and my habits are getting fixed.

An astonishing number of men like myself remain single for reasons much like those I have mentioned. Unmarried, we have one bird in the hand—contentment. How can we tell that we may get hold of that gay, long-tailed paroquet in the bush, married felicity, if we suddenly change our state?

There is an ideal weman I should like to marry. Some day I may meet with

A Denver dispatch to the Chicago Herald says: "Some weeks ago a fine looking old man, nearly 80 years of age, with snow white hair and beard, applied to the county commissioners for aid and was sent to the County Poor Farm, where he still remains. The old man gave his name as William Harrison, and said he was a first cousin of the ex-President. The officials smiled at the pauper's story, but Secretary Thomson of the Humane Society, quietly decided to investigate it. He has now received letters confirming the old gentleman's statement in every particular. George S. Cunningham of Lancaster, O., formerly Mr. Harrison's attorney, gives the facts, and a daughter. Mrs. Rebecca Williamson, of the same place, has been written to. Mr. Harrison charges his daughter and his former attorney with baye ingratitude, but says "Benjamin," his cousin, does not know of his said straits. The old man's resemblance to his distinguished relative is striking."

The goods displayed were highly attractive, and the prices marked on them were simply amaging. A member of the firm, down here from San Francisco, explained to a reporter the meaning of the "drive." He said: "We have a very large stock of fine imported goods. We are not going to wait for Congress to tinker with the tariff on woolens; we propose to make the reductions ourselves, and to make the reductions ourselves, and to make the mow. At any rate, we have undertaken to turn $10,000 worth of our good into cash, now, and at once, in preference to carrying them over to another season. For ten days we shall make such prices as were never heard of before in California. If people do not take advantage of this sale and leave their orders with us, they will be acting most unwisely, for the opportunity will not be repeated. They can well afford, at our prices, to order a little in advance of their needs." The store has been very handsomely decorated and refurnished, and will be open for business today.

Celon Orange Orchards.

(Florida Agriculturist:) Florida orange-growers are not the only ones who are bothered about their trees. From one of the Ceylon exchanges we find that the trees there after they attain a certain age die. They commence to die at the end of the branches, and the dead wood increases and spreads until the entire tree is and spreads until the entire tree is encompassed and perishes. One writer and soreads until the entire tree is encompassed and perishes. One writer attributes this to the roots reaching the hard pan or still clay and pebble sub-soil. He suggests as a remedy, or rather as a preventive, that manure be applied in liberal quantities around the trunk and roots of the tree, and that it be mulched with cocoanut hulks. This, he says, will have a tendency to cause the roots to seek the surface rather than to go downward.

The natives of that country have a novel way of preventing die back, or at least preventing the roots from reaching the sub-soil, which is admitted by them to be fatal. In planting the trees they excavate quite a large hole and pave the bottom of it with stones. The writer in question thinks this is the proper plan, and quotes in support of his theory from Sir Walter Scott's "Antiouary" as follows; "The planters of these days possessed of the modern secret of preventing the till, and compelling them to storead in a lateral direction, by placing paving stones beneath the trees when first planted, so as to interescent their fibers and the sub-soil."

this subject to the Live Stock Report, in which he says:

Properly managed, I believe no farm animals are less subject to disease than hogs In the hope of helping to direct the attention of some to a more rational system of handling, let me call attention to two points: First, just so far as possible keep all swine, young and old, upon fresh ground and away from farm buildings. There is no need whatever of keeping, hogs in the barnyards, hogyards, or in quarters where they must be accommodated in winter, during the summer months. For several years past, here at the experiment station, we have kept all hogs, even brood sows, away from near the farm buildings in sammer time, and have found the pracaway from near the farm buildings in sammer time, and have found the practice very satisfactory from almost every standpoint. Of course it is troublesome to feed in the field, but the gains are too large to go back to the old system. Iron pipe is cheap, and water can be carried out into the feed lot at small cost. We have a small light building which holds the feed, and can be locked. This building is easily placed on the stone boat and drawn to a new point when the ground becomes be locked. This building is easily placed on the stone boat and drawn to a new point when the ground becomes filthy in its vicinity. A barrel on wheels carries water for mixing with the feed from the hydrant. In some of our experiments we are obliged to confine the hogs to limited areas. In this case we still keep out in the field, having movable pens, and use a few boards to protect them from the sun and rain. Pens a couple of rods square are made in which six or eight hogs are kept. When the ground becomes foul the pens are changed to a new place. Under this system the fields are fertilized in an admirable manner without loss of material or waste of time. As swine are usually kept about buildings, a large portion of the hog manner is usually wasted. If protected from cold rains and from the hot suns it is surprising to see how healthful and contented hogs are under this management. Our hogs go out early in the spring, and at this writing, with over seventy head on hand, from suckling pfgs up to a bunch weighing over four hundred pounds each, not an animal is near our farm buildings. Very soon, now, of course, they must be brought into what we call winter quarters.

The second point is to still keep the hogs on the ground when they go into winter quarters. This we manage in two ways—one plan is to use small sleeping pens, six to eight feet square and five feet in height, the sides so fastened as to be movable. Set this in a dry place, seeing that the earth is high enough inside that no water shall

In this case the hogs lie on the ground, and adjoining the bedding place, but separated from it by a six-inch plank set on edge, is where the droppings accumulate. The manure is removed weekly and the place thoroughly cleaned, after which the old bedding is thrown over into the space and new bedding on the ground where the hogs sleep. At feeding time they pass through a gateway to a plank floor, where grain is fed from la trough. Our hogs, kept thus on the ground, but under cover and confined, have always done well, with a minimum amount of ailment. Our most pretentious place for keeping hogs, the so-called "hoghouse," has proven so unsatisfactory house," has proven so unsatisfactor that we are about to tear out that por (Exchange) French agricultural scientists are hottly engaged in the question, not of feeding stock, but of scientists are hotly engaged in the question, not of feeding stock, but of feeding the soil. In other words, how best to manure land to maintain its fertility. There are three schools represented. One maintains that barnyard manure alone suffices; the other that mineral fertilizers simply are adequate; while the third asserts that the barnyard manure ought to be complemented by the mineral agents.

The latter view is the one generally accepted. The soil is viewed as a rock, at which plants feed. Hunns is as necessary as the laboratory wherein the transformation of foods for plants is effected, and prepared for assimilation. It is a requisite then to keep up the store of organic matter in the soil, and that barnyard manure contributes to secure. But the latter does not contain sufficient elements of fertility to produce heavy crops, nor is its action uniformly beneficial for every soil or for dissimilar plants.

It is here where the role of mineral fertilizers comes into play by supplying nitrates, phosphates and alkalis according as the demand for them may be special and peculiar to the soil and its vegetaton. Farmyard manure alone can postpone but cannot prevent the ultimate exhaustion of the soil. Nor can the employment of mineral fertilizers prevent the soil's exhaustion if the supply of hunus is not kept up. If the soil be naturally rich in organic matter, as is the case with the commercial kitchen gardens around Paris, mineral manures can be employed singly for several years. Alone organic and of produce.

It is in this direction that farmers are moving. There is quite a mania setting in for the plowing under of green crops to swell the amount of humus in the soil, and a rage for gypsum applications, the latter being wholly inexplicable.

markedly of spring potatoes, but secures their maturity three weeks earlier.

One ton of the cotton seed cake contains forty-seven pounds of phosphoric acid, eighty pounds of nitrogen and thirty-three pounds of potash. It is to these fertilizers then that the action of the cake is due—not to the organic matter, as it would require twenty-four tons of farmyard manure per acre to supply the same quantity of phosphoric acid, etc., as exists in one ton of the cake.

The Business Men Want the Streets Paved.

A Largely-signed Petition Comrade Simas's Lecture Standard Time Coming - People. Coming and Going-Brevities.

No further action of importance will be No further action of importance will be taken in the paving matter until August 28, the day on which new bids for the work will be opened. Meanwhile the business men on Colorado street and Raymond and Fair Oaks avenues are manifesting a lively interest in the outcome. The petition addressed to the Council, asking that the streets be paved this summer, and which has previously been printed in these columns, has already received a large number of signatures, and the probability is that by next Monday, when it will be presented to the Council, nine-tenths of all the business men occupying premises on the portions of the streets which it is proposed to pave will have signed. It is a note-worthy fact that some of the signers are property-owners themselves, who believe rty-owners themselves, who believe occeedings to be legal and who ear-the proceedings to be legal and who ear nestly desire that steps be taken to pave the streets before the rains comeon.

The probability is that if any reasonable bid is submitted a new contract will be let august 28. The prevailing public sentiment is strongly in favor of beginning work then on Colorado street, so that the paving of this thoroughfare will be an assured fact. Providing it is afterward decided to abandon work temporarily on Raymond and Fair Oaks avenues the Council will still have time to go through the necessary formality for paving the cross intersections of these two thoroughfares with Colorado street before the work on the latter street is completed.

STANDARD TIME. Manager H. W. The required number of subscribers is fifteen, nearly all of whom have been secured, so that the success of the project is assured. A master clock will be placed in the telegraph omice. This will be connected by a complete circuit with all the other clocks, which will be synchronized every hour. Each day at noon, this circuit will be connected by wire with Marc Island, San Francisco, which, in turn, will be connected with the Lick Observatory, which has a direct wire to Washington, D. At last the citizens of Pomona can breathe

At last the citizens of Pomona can breathe easier in regard to the much-talked about city park. For some time past it has been generally inderstood that the city would have no park, as some were sick of the proposed purchase. But not so now. The question is definitely settled, and sixteen acres of land at the San Jose hills have been purchased by the City Council. The land will be improved and the people will have some place to visit.

That a city of the size and importance of Pomona should have a neat and attractive park there can be no doubt. The Council will undoubtedly see that steps are taken to properly keep it. The land is beautifully situated, has abundant water, and from a most inviting and winding road leads to the summit of San Jose hills, where travelers say the pretitest bird's-eye view aimost ever seen can be witnessed. From the summit Pomona and the heautiful valley surrounding it rolls out in plain view, and no one has ever seen the picture who is not enthusiastic over it. That the park, when properly improved, will be worth all the city pays for it there can be no doubt.

Excitement Over the Bohn Murder Continues.

Being Held for Murder-Redlands vation Army.

The excitement caused by the mur-der of Gustav Bohn by C. M. Button in the mountains last Sunday, con-tinues in San Bernardino with little abatement, though the decision of Jusabatement, though the decision of Justice Wright to hold Button to answer before the Superior Court to the charge of murder, has lessened the possibility of a lynching taking place. But the German population had become very much wrought up over the affair, as Bohn was a general favorite, whose house was always open to whomsoever might wish to use it. There was some talk of relieving the State of the expense of a trial by by means of the hemp. Therefore, as a precautionary measure, Jailer Newby means of the hemp. Therefore, as a precautionary measure, Jailer Newton Brown swore in twelve deputies on Thursday evening, and placed them in the County Jail, all armed with Winchesters and shotguns. But no attempt was made at getting Button out, and it is thought that none will be made. Dist-Atty. Sprecher employed Bledsoe & Hutchins as special counsel to conduct the prosecution for the State, and Byron Waters defended Button.

ENGINE UPSET.

At 8:45 Friday morning, as freight train No. 116 on the Southern California Railway, was pulling into the depot, it split the switch at the Third street crossing, and the engine followed the curve, running to the other side of the belt track. As soon as the engine passed the switch sprung back and the tender and the rest of the train followed the main track toward the station. The engine was thrown from the track, and turned to the left upon its side. Nothing else left the track save the forward truck of the tender. It was engine No. 5, the largest in the Southern California division, weighing about ninety-five tons. The engine was righted and back on the track by the middle of the afternoon. Very little damage was done, and no one was hurt. Through trains on the loop ran around by the northern side.

REDLANDS.

According to instructions from the city trustees, an ordinance has been prepared by the City Attorney and presented to the board for the promotion of safety in travel upon the public highways in the city of Redlands. The frightening of horses by the beating of drums upon the streets by the Salvation Army was the primary cause leading to the framing of this ordinance. The ordinance is very specific in its designation of what shail not be done, and should it be enforced to the letter one may expect the streets of Redlands to take on the aspect of a New England village, save for the bustle of business, which cannot be eliminated from a live city like this.

The ordinance prohibits the beating of drums, ringing of bells, blowing of horns or trumpets, or making a noise with any other sounding instrument upon the streets of Redlands without first securing a permit from the president of the Board of City Trustees, who may grant such permit when, in his judgment, the public safety is not endangered thereby, and shall specify in such permit at what time or times the same applies, and for such time only shall the sounds be made. It is probable that the ordinance will receive several important amendments before its passage. Not only the Salvation Army, but the city band, auctioneers and citizens generally are much interested.

Rev. William Pittenger accepted the challenge in a way, and last Sunday evening preached in reply from his pulpit in the Methodist Church. As in all such controversies, some statements were made that would be difficult, if not impossible to sustantiate. Rev. ### Crons and Markets.

The latest crop bulletin of the Southern California weather service reports that the warmest weather of the sea-son prevailed the week ending August 16, the temperature at Los Angeles averaging 2½ deg. daily above the normals, and the excess at San Diego No rain fell pected at this season, and none is desired on account of fruit-drying, which is in active progress in every direc-tion. Clear weather prevailed except some foggy mornings in the bean sec-tions, which were desirable for this crop. Fruit ripened rapidly and the markets are supplied with fruits of every variety. ormally low prices prevail for products generally; dried apricots, the finest that have been cured for sea-sons, are almost going begging for Quite a large shipment was reported from Santa Ana at 7 cents a pound, which is about half the usual price realized by driers. Grain and hay are bringing low prices, and large quantities are being stored in expec-tation of better prices later on.

The grain and hay markets are in worse condition if possible than last It is difficult to get any offer for wheat, barley or hay, and the banks are unwilling to lend money to move the crops. It does not seem possible that prices can go much lower for these products. People who have barley are often advised to feed it to hogs. Many of them would be very glad to do so, but the trouble is that they cannot get the hogs.

The fruit market is also in a depressed condition. One of the leading commission houses of Los Angeles ceased shipping deciduous fruits this section to the East, because satisfactory prices cannot be ob-has ceased shipping deciduous fruits from this section to the East, because satisfactory prices cannot be obtained.

The statement recently made in these columns that deciduous fruits raised in Southern California are frequently inferior, in some respects, to the northern product is confirmed in many quarters. Take, for instance Muscat grapes. A carload was shipped from Southern California to Chicago recently, and sold at 60 cents per box of twenty-five pounds. After paying 48 cents for freight and refrigerator, and is gents for the crate and packing, this brings the shipper out 6 cents in debt, without making any allowance for picking, etc. At about the same time a carload of Muscat grapes from the northern part of the State was sold in Chicago at 90 cents, and another carload in Minneapolis at $1.05. The proof of the quality is in the marketing. It would be well for Southern California growers to investigate this question thoroughly. There seems to be able to raise as good deciduous fruit, down here as in the northern part of the State, although some claim that our climate, which is so excellent for human beings, is not so well adapted to bringing some varieties of fruit to perfection. They say that the cool nights, which we find so pleasant, are a drawback in retarding the ripening of fruit. In the North the nights are warm—in fact there is more or less of a uniform heat throughout the twenty-four hours, and this is supposed by some to be as necessary for the ripening of fruit as it is for the hatching of eggs. It may be that our growers have not yet mastered the art of selecting and packing fruit, which has reached great perfection in the northern part of the State.

A Chicago circular of recent date reports a growing scarcity of lemons, and the prospect of high prices in the near future. There is some talk of quarantining Sicily iemons, owing to the cholera in Italy.

California fruit was sold in Chicago on Thursday at the following prices: Bartlett pears, $1.20 to $1.105. Muscat grapes, half crates, $6c.

Fruit Drying Under Glass.

A Los Angeles correspondent of the Call tells of a new device for drying fruit under glass or thin cotton cloth, which he says was originated by C. J. Calkins of this city, who, however, claims no patent upon his idea. Glass cases about 6x8 feet in surface measurement and about eight inches in depth are provided for the fruit, which is laid on two trays. The trays are placed on rollers in such a way that they may be inclined toward the satisfactory method of drying fruit. Sun-dried fruit needs great care to prevent its becoming dirty or worm-instead during the process, while, as to evaporators, no permanently successful machine has yet been found. The method above described appears to form a satisfactory solution of the difficulty. Where growers cannot afford to use glass, they might adopt the cotton cloth, which is almost as effective as glass in storing heat, as anyone may discover by spending an hour in a closed tent on a warm summer day.

An Extravagant People.

During a recent discussion in San Francisco, W. H. Mills, who is "chock" full of good ideas, pointed out the fact that Californians are too apt to neglect the opportunities they have to make use of the results of scientific research and experiments in other lands. He referred to the statement of a German professor, Mr. Solomon, who recently visited this coast in the interest of the tanning industry. He said that the Americans are the most extrayagant people in the world, usextravagant people in the world, us ing the resources at their command with a lavishness that has no regard for the future, and neglecting to de-velop resources which it would cost nothing to foster. In illustration of this Mr. Solomon pointed to the con-tinual use of oak bark, which contains from 8 to 13 per cent. of tannic acid.

from 8 to 13 per cent. of tannic acid, in preference to cultivating golden wattles or acacias; which will grow on forest soil and in marshy ground, and contains 32 per cent. of tannic acid. In Germany the lack of oak bark has required scientific research, and there acacia is used.

This is only one of the many instances in which Southern California farmers and land-owners show their extravagance and lack of appreciation of the many advantages which a bougtiful nature has provided for their use in this favored section. By the time that we begin to fully utilize the resources of Southern California a man who owns twenty acres of land will be looked upon as a "bloated monopolist."

A Vexatious Patent.

TUSTIN, Aug. 15.—(To the Editor of The Times.) As your valuable paper is largely circulated among the orange growers, could we ask you to give us some light upon one of the dark sides of the citrus-growing industry, which will help to settle the problem that now confronts us? For instance, many of our orchards are infested more or less with the red scale, and the process of fumigating the trees seems to be the most effective remedy to control them I had just purchased the material, and engaged men to come in and fumigate my citrus trees, when I received the

"A. Guy Smith, Tustin, Cal.—Dear Sir: Messrs. Wall, Jones and Bishop, owners of the patented process for fumigating trees and plants, patent No. 415.342, have placed in our hands the matter of your infringement of their said patent, and to collect by suit in equity the profits and benefits derived by your use of the same. Your immediate attention is called to this matter in hopes to avoid expense.

I am informed that the only processes these parties claim to have patented is the fact of their doing the work in the night-time, but it has been demonstrated over and over dar if we have a cool day with a moist atmosphere, we can do equally as good work at midday as at midnight; while if the work is done on a hot night, with a dry desert atmosphere prevailing, we will burn the fruit and leaves from nearly every tree that is covered.

ourn the truit and leaves from nearly every tree that is covered.

Though fully convinced that under their patent these parties have nothing to sell, I have paid the royalty demanded rather than submit to the annoyance and delay of an injunction, which the attorney said they should issue to prevent my doing any further work.

I find that these parties are proceeding on a "still hunt" in this matter, and that a half dozen or more of myneighbors are being treated the same as myself, and probably another batch will be served next week.

We believe there is no real justice in the demands, but think it cheaper to pay than to suffer the endless expense and delays which the coarts allow, and attorneys can invent, especially if working for a contingent fee, until they can wear out a person and make him glad to settle on almost any terms. This matter is working much damage to the citrus industry, as many growers will refuse, or cannot afford to pay the royalty demanded, and will neglect to properly clean their orchards, so that the pests from their trees will be spreading over those which have been cleaned. It is to the interest of all fruit-growers to have this business settled, and though I have already paid the fees demanded. I will gladly join an organization and pay my proportion to have this claim contested and its legality decided. A GUY SMITH.

ripens are so limited that it can never become an important product of this region, although there seems to be no reason why it should not pay a good profit in the favored and frostless lo-galities where it will ripen.

The Other Side of the Story.

While it is doubtlessly true that the past orange season has been a disastrous one for all who have been eugaged in the business, there are excep-gaged in the business, there are exceptions to the rule, as may be seen by the following extract from the Cincinnati Enquirer:

"A fat dividend! A very prosperous business for the past year! The Cincinnati, Florida and California Fruit Auction Company held its regular annual meeting yesterday. The company has been very prosperous. A dividend of 25 per cent, on the year's business was declared and made payable on demand."

This is formation will furnish our orange-growers with much food for thought.

Hoggish Commission Men.

The Times has kept its readers fully informed of the attempt which has been made by a certain auction firm in Chicago to make a sort of star chamber business of fruit auctioning in Chicago, by shutting out small buyers and confining the business to a few favored purchasers who, of course, could easily get up a little ring among themselves and buy at their own prices. It is gratifying to know that this little game has been "busted" and the open accrotion houses "busted" and the open acction housare now doing most of the business

A Flourishing Community. A Hourishing Community.

Outside of Redlands and perhaps Whittier, there is no place in Southern California which has grown so rapidly since the boom as Fullerton, in Orange county. It has grown on merit, as the center of a rich producing section. Almost everything in the line of Southern California products is raised around Fullerton, from oranges to wool. A railroad man says that Fulerton does a larger shipping business over the Santa Fe line than Rivera Santa Fe Springs, Los Nietos, Anaheim and Orange combined. Fullerton is the Pomona of Orange county.

Direct to Europe.

Direct to Europe,

Los Angeles county is shipping products grown on her soil direct from one of her ports to Europe. Mr. Porter of the great Porter ranch near San Fernando has chartered an American vessel to load grain for the United Kingdom at San Pedro. As soon as the Nicaragua Canal shall have been completed the departing of a vessel from San Pedro to Europe loaded to the gunwales with wheat, and barley, and oil, and fruit, and nuts will be an almost every-day occurrence. We an almost every-day occurrence. We have all those things, and Europe wants them, but it costs too much to get them there.

To Cure Peaches for Market.

(California Fruit Grower:) A subscriber at Walnut Creek announces that he has an immense crop of peaches, and asks for advice as to the best way and asks for advice as to the best way to peel and dry his fruit for market.

Not knowing the acreage, condition or exposure of his orchards or the varieties of peaches and a number of other elements entering the problem, it would be impossible for any contraction.

would be impossible for us to give detailed advice concerning operations of gathering and preparing his crop.
We assume, however, that our correspondent especially desires informa-tion about peeling and drying.

These questions may be answered in a general way in one sentence: Peel by machines or by hand and dry in the by machines or by hand and dry in the sun. Concerning the best machines for peeling peaches, we are advised that Scott's rotary knife parer, for sale by Baker & Hamilton of this city, is one of the very best. In default of satisfactory machines, women and girls may be employed with good results. Do not use lye to loosen the skin, is the advice of those who secure the best results. If raisin trays are availthe advice of those who secure the best results. If raisin trays are available, they can be used for drying. It is possible that such trays may be hired before the raisin season begins, if it is not desirable to manufacture them for future use in the peach orchard. A very good tray is made of well-seasoned shooks half-inch hick, six inches in width and three feet thick, six inches in width and three feet long nailed to strong end pieces, making othe finished tray two by three feet ing the finished tray two by three feet in dimension. This is the ordinary raisin tray, and is found convenient for drying other fruits as well as grapes. The drying grounds should be smooth and as free from dust as possible; and, throughout the entire operations of handling the fruit, the utmost cleanlinesf should be observed. To this end the employment of women is very desira-ble. Of course, men should be em-ployed to handle loaded trays and do the heavy work. Most orchardists con-sider it necessary to sulphur their fruit before drying, and in that case appli-ances for the purpose must be secured. ances for the purpose must be secured In this matter we commend the suggesa short time since in the California Fruit Grower, though other methods are in use and may be easily adopted.

The relative prices of peeled and unpeeled fruit would determine to a great extent whether a part or the whole be peeled. If the fruit is dried with-out peeling the cost of preparation is much less, since the operation of cut-ting and pitting by machines is rapidly done, thus reducing the labor cost to a minimum. ninimum.

Alex Craw, State entomologist, who formerly resided in Los Angeles, and Mr. Koebele are on their way to inspect the colonies of orcus chalvbeus in this section, and we shall probably then obtain more light upon the operations of these useful parasites, of which so much is expected.

The Red Spider.

H. Koopman sends The Times a prune leaf infested with a pest which, he says, destroys his young prune trees. The pest is commonly known as the red spider. It infests a great variety of different kinds of plants, both wild and cultivated, usually living beneath a web, which it spins for the evident purpose of protecting itself against the attacks of its insect enemies. Citrus trees are and stone fruits among the deciduous trees appear to be more subject to its attacks than are the pip fruits. En ish walnut trees also sometimes suffer severely from its attacks.

Perhaps the best remedy to use for the destruction of this pest is the resin wash, composed of twenty pounds of resin, five pounds of 70 per cent. caustic soda, three pints of fish oil and water sufficient to make 100 gallons. These ingredients should be boiled in about twenty gallons of water, the boiling to be continued until the solution will dilute perfectly with water; after which the balance of the water is added, and the mixture is ready to be sprayed upon the trees. This has been used on peach, prune and walnut trees, as well as on orange trees without producing any injury to the leaves or fruit.

Rust in Wheat.

(American Cultivator:) An experinent made in France for the treatment of rust in wheat is said to have been successful. On a field of one-half acre one half was sprayed with a solution of one half was sprayed with a solution of four and one-half pounds of sulphate of copper and six and three-quarters pounds sulphate of soda dissolved in two gallons of water. The sprayed portion produced at the rate of thirty-six bushels per acre, with clean, white straw, while the other produced only twenty two bushels per acre, with a very enty-two bushels per acre, with a very entytwo bushels per acre, with a very rusty black straw. This would be at the rate of eighteen pounds of copper sulphate and twenty-seven pounds of soda sul-phate to eight gallons of water per acre, and a gain of fourteen bushels of wheat.

to assert that keeping grain always before the fowls, so that they may help themselves when they please, will make them too fat to lay. This may be true of the Brahmas and Cochins, that are naturally lazy and disposed to fatten easily. It is not true of Leghorns, black Spanish and games. They will not keep still anyway, and relish their much better when they have scratched up some one's garden to get it, and if confined with food before them all the time would fret themselves lean in their close quarters rather than

The Poultry Association.

The Los Angeles County Poultry
Association held its seventh monthly meeting last Saturday evening. Matters in connection with next show were discussed and the following show officers were elected:

Show Committee-C. T. Paul, John C. Stedman, George H. Case, E. C. Thurber and Henry W. Kruckeberg.

Show Superintendent-A. S. Guthrie. Auxiliary Show Committee-A. E. shausen, J. B. Kuhn, Henry Guyot Charles Schaffer, A. S. Guthrie and C. E. Conklin.

Great interest is being evinced in the show to be held January 15-20, 1894, and there is no question but that this will be a grand and successful affair. The secretary has received a number of inquiries from the East and from Northern California breeders, and there is every prospect of a large representation from a distance.

Following this show will come the San Francisco Midwinter Poultry Show, at which a large number of Los Angeles breeders will exhibit.

The poultry exhibit in connection with the County Agricultural Society, will be held October 16-20, 1893.

An article from a contemporary was printed in these columns, advising fruitgrowers to keep bees in and around heir orchards. proper fertilization of the fruit. This is good advice, in its way, but the trouble comes in when fruit is being dried in the sun. .At such times great swarms of bees attack the tempting menu, which they seem to think has been prepared for their especial benpetitioned the Board of Supervisors against the bees.

Managing Bees.

A writer in the American Bee Journal thus describes his method of managing thus describes his method of managing his bees, which, we think, cannot be improved upon as far as he gives it: "When the first swarm issues, I hive it in a hive filled with the drawn combs and give them the section case that was on the old hive or one with a few unfinished sections, and I never had any trouble in getting the bees to fill them.

Igo to the old hive the seventh or eighth day after the swarm issues and cut out all the queen cells but one and inclose that one in a queen cell protector, giving them a case of sections with a few unfinished sections in the center; then I am not troubled with any more increase, and frequently I get more increase, and frequently I get from eighty to 100 pounds of surplus honev after the swarm issues

Attractive Hives

(American Cultivator:) A new swarm should always have a clean hive, well ventilated, and, if possible, provided with a little comb foundation, if not a full supply. In olden times it was cus with flowers or sweet-smelling herbs to make the bees stay in it, and it may be done now in many cases to good advantage. We may have learned some things that our grandmothers did not know, but there is no excuse for forgetting or ignoring that which they did know.

some men have the skill and judgment that enables them to so rear and feed their calves that they will make better dairy cows than they would be if brought up in the manner which is common among many farmers and stock-keepers. among many farmers and stock-keepers. Such men also usually have good judgment in selecting the best calves for such purpose, and if they are so situated that they can grow or buy the necessary fodder cheaply, they would do well to make a business of rearing dairy cows for sale. There are many dairymen and milkmen near our cities who would much prefer buying cows fresh in milk when they need them, instead of keeping dry cows until they calve again, and there is usually a good market and good prices for such cows. This business need not necessarily take the place of dairying, but would make a profitable addition to it out would make a profitable addition in the right hands. in the right hands

Impressive Services at the Residence on West
Washington Street.

The funeral services of the late Capt.
Edwin Willis Hewitt were held yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the family residence, No. 807 West Washington street, and were largely attended.
The house was overflowing with friends, and a number of the order of Knights of Pythias, of which organization Capt. Hewitt was a member, were among those paying this last tribute.

Rev. J. S. Thomson, pastor of the Church of the Unity, conducted the devotional exercises, which were simple, brief and impressive. O. Stewart Taylor's quartette, consisting of Miss Maud Cullen, soprano, Miss O'Melveny, alto, W. J. Barr, tenor, and O. Stewart Taylor, bass, rendered music. The bearers were Messrs. A. W. Swanfieldt, J. M. Glass, J. Cohn, Joseph Chambers, D. Felix and Joseph Sherman. Numerous floral offerings were contributed.

Sherman. Numerous floral offerings were contributed.

Capt. Hewitt was a native of Massachusetts, and had served the army for a long term, having been for more than thirty years connected with the quartermaster's department. He came to this Coast with Gen. Canby during the Modoc war, and was connected with the department with him until the general was killed in Oregon by the Indians. A son, Canby Hewitt, is named in honor of that fearless leader. Capt. Hewitt was afterward for seventehn years with Gen. Rufus Saxton, until he retired. Since then he has been associated with other prominent quartermasters, and at the time of his illness was expecting to go to Denver with Maj. Atwood, with army headquarters. Six years ago he removed to Los Angeles from Louisville, Ky., where he was for some time stationed. He leaves a widow and son in this city, and a son at Leavenworth, Kan.

According to his expressed wishes, his body will be cremated.

DANDRUFF FOR TEN YEARS. DANDRUFF FOR TEN YEARS.

After using one bottle of Smith's Dandruff Pomade, I am pleased to state that I am entirely cured of dandruff, with which I was troubled for ten years. I have paid out dollar after dollar for remedies recommended to me, but without any permanent effect, and your remedy is the only one that has perfected a cure. I found more benefit from three applications of your remedy than all others combined. I cheerfully recommend it to all having trouble with dandruff, regardless of how many years standing. Yours truly, J. L. MARBLE, Assistant postmaster, Fresno.

The Board of Supervisors have been notified, also the police, and some assistance will doubtless be forthcoming soon. So far, the only lice, and some assistance will doubtless be forthcoming soon. So far, the only help received has been from some of the neighbors, who are poor themselves, and from Dr. Bullard, who has been attending the child. Both woman and children are in need of clothing, and donations of partly-worn garments or groceries, if left with Capt. McKeag, at the East Side police station, will reach their destination and will be deeply appreciated.

TO THE PUBLIC.

Intending purchasers of Pond's EXTRACT cannot take too much precaution to prevent substitution. Some druggists, trading on the popularity of the great Family Remedy, attempt to palm off other preparations, asserting them to be "the same as" or "equal to" POND'S EXTRACT, indifferent to the deceit practiced upon and disappointment thereby caused to the purchaser, so long as larger profits accrue to themselves. # PEOPLE'S STORE

Great Slaughter Sale!

WE did not call in vain. The goods we advertised and the prices we quoted we had in stock. We wanted to let out $75,000 worth of merchandise and put the price so that it would move. We did not find it necessary to humbug the people by advertising lines of goods at an absurd price that embraced thousands of colors, and when they called for them were able to show about three. But we did take the heart of our stock and place it on our counters at prices that have never been equalled and never will be. We are here to stay, here to convince you daily that the words we express in this paper are found to be true in our stores. We are selling merchandise, and the best of it, at less price than most of the Los Angeles merchants pay for it. 'We are losing money, but in the loss we make a gain by the reduction of a stupendous stock which is unmerchantable to us at this season of the year. This sale has been grasped at once; it has been a success; it could not help but be. The magnetism of our prices would eclipse all feeble efforts in netism of our prices would eclipse an leeble chors in this direction. Tonight we will have our usual grand Satur-day night sale.
